

January 25, 2008

For immediate release:

Discover LibraryThing

There's someThing new at the Rapid City Public Library: an online service called LibraryThing. It's just the Thing to help readers find new books to match their reading tastes, network with other book lovers, and build and catalog their own library online.

Book enthusiasts can visit www.rapidcitylibrary.org and click on the RCPL LibraryThing link to discover categorized lists of new books at the Rapid City Public Library. There are book reviews available too, including reviews by library staff members. LibraryThing offers book suggestions, book discussions, author blogs and more -- and can also help anyone track the books they have read or still want to read.

Subscribe to the (RSS) news feed from the RCPL LibraryThing member page and you'll always know what new materials are coming in next. You can subscribe to the book reviews as well.

Love books? Love reading? Then LibraryThing is for you.

Contact: Jason Walker, Circulation Librarian, Rapid City Public Library